

A Karlsson Rixon. Traces of Vulnerable Existence, Gallery 3d Floor, Gothenburg, March 1-30, 2025

Traces of Vulnerable Existence, installation view Gallery 3d Floor.
 Left: Various Tents and Other Shelters (after Ed Ruscha), 2017 - 2025
 Back wall: Los Angeles Cityscape from Griffith Park Observatory, January 18, 2025
 Pillar: Real Estate for Sale Eaton Fire and Evacuation Zone (2025-01-09) and Real Estate for Sale Palisade Fire and Evacuation Zone (2025-01-09)
 Right: Traces of Vulnerable Existence, 2017

Traces of Vulnerable Existence

Solo exhibition at the 3rd Floor Gallery, March 1 - 30, 2025. Installation (200 sqm, digital and analog photography, archival prints, collage, photo wallpaper, screenshots, found documents, 3 white-painted boards on trestles).

Photographs of urban landscapes that are inhabited by thousands of people without any permanent housing. They are taken 2017 - 2025 during walks in predominantly Downtown Los Angeles and during bike rides along the Los Angeles River. Also present in the exhibition were the extensive fires that raged in early 2025 and led to a different kind of homelessness. The exhibition was framed by two collages of photographs taken at protest marches in connection with Trump's presidential inaugurations in 2017 and 2025.

Various Tents and Other Shelters (after Ed Ruscha) 2017 – 2025
 (artists' books in the making).

Traces of Vulnerable Existence, 2017, 40 x 160 cm, analogue photography, digital prints, archival rice paper

“What holds everything together is the location, Downtown Los Angeles, and the dramatic changes and shifts that has taken place over the course of eight years. “Traces of Vulnerable Existence” is about the course of events that one finds oneself in the midst of, where the newest works are no more than a month old. It does not result in any ready-made statements, but the events are instead processed and reflected through the exhibition, which in itself becomes a way of trying to understand an era characterized by major upheavals.”

Ann-Charlotte Glasberg Blomqvist, Göteborgs-Posten Kultur
 2025-03-04