Synopsis:

A regular day in Paris – terrace, cigarettes, clouds lingering overhead. A couple makes their way back home, notice each others' shoes, and begin to caress and tug at each other's black leather jackets. An intimate episode hence unfolds between four acts — leather worship, needling, stapling, and fucking — in which sex and the idea of sex stretch to encompass a suite of absolute pleasure and resolute pain.

In Layers of Leather (2025), a transsexual fantasy between a loyal sub and his skilled dom perverts the very same tools modern medicine uses to treat, test, and true the bodies shared on screen. Director and co-star Gen Kuzak does not only take pain like a champ, but is poked and probed by the same syringe needles, medical staples, and latex gloves used so often in the medicalization of trans bodies.
