Objective: I'm driven by the need to tell authentic stories and bring beautifully complicated characters to life. I believe artists should reflect their time and carry a point of view; not as a declaration, but as instinct. Being from Latin America and a member of the LGBTQ+ community in New York City shapes how I see, feel, and move through the world. I'm drawn to intimacy, contradiction, and the quiet spaces between identities. Telling diverse stories isn't a mission for me; it's in my nature. I believe film, photo, poetry and art matter most when they move beyond craft and become something felt; when an image, a story, or a gesture lingers long enough to connect us across differences.
